DC's first comic creatures superhero, Terrific's Whatzit first appeared in Funny Things #1 (Ether 1944) and created by Martin Naydel. [1] McSnurtle's Fictional Biography is a tortoise and shop that lives in the city of Zooville and is being realized for both his honesty and his laziness. It is granted supervised by two powerful, other modeling entities (the beautiful Prince Highness and embarrassing Prince Lowness) who wish to see how a completely honest person would handle being granted superpowers. [2] When in action as the Terrific Whatzit, McSnurtle removed his steroid and dons a suit almost that of the golden age flash saved that the lightning bolt adorned is replaced by a TW in a yellow circle. [3] The name Terrific Whatzit stem from the fact that without his steroids, it's hard to tell what kind of beast McSnurtle is. McSnurtle's last appearance golden age as Terrific Whatzit was in Funny Stuff #17 (January 1947), although it continues to appear from time to time as McSnurtle's store of other features. [4] Her superheroic identity would no longer appear until Captain Carrot and Amazing Zoo Crew #9 in November 1982, in which she saw helping the Allies during the Second Weird War. The series reveals in an earlier story that Terrific's Whatzit is the uncle of Zoo Team Fastback Team. [5] Power and ability As Terrific's Whatzit, McSnurtle possesses super-speed powers similar to those of the gold age. These powers, while primarily based on superspect, include also some substance strength (enough to be the main weapon of a tank at barrel[s]) and the ability to fly. McSnurtle also takes a ghostly-like automated awareness that will not be relaxed until it goes into action against the threat of the story.[7][8] Other versions Of Ordinary Tortoise Carry Classic Terrific What Suits DC Super Friend #14 (June 2009), as the animal is adopted in the flash. A redesigned version of terrific Whatzit is displayed in the book DC Super-Pets children of Salamander Smackdown[1], as an overlapping pet in the present day. Unlike the previous versions, this version of the Terrific Whatzit wearing a suit is similar to the modern flash. In other media McSurnurtle's turtle appeared as the childish cloak of Iris West in revenge in the episodes rogues in the flash. Later on, in the borrowed future issue, HR gives Barry a tortoise named McSnurtle as a Gifts. Nominations ^ Mitchell, Kurt; Thomas, Roy (2019). American Comic Book Chronicle: 1940-1944.
